Hello fellow CANnoisseurs! There doesn't seem to be a lot going on at AB InBev as far as new releases go. Receiving anything other than a generic type answer from them would probably be asking too much I suppose, but I'm sure there are probably more important things that they're working on since the sellout. With all the changes going on they may not even know what the future has in store. It's quite disappointing from a collector's standpoint to say the least. They will be redesigning their Bud Light brand, so at least we have that to look forward to. But where one niche slows down, another one rages on. Pepsi and Mountain Dew both owned by PepsiCo have been quite busy lately. Most of you know that Mountain Dew released several more Green Label Art bottles last year and a four bottle NASCAR set. While Pepsi released a four bottle set with vintage Pepsi labels, as well as a six bottle set featuring NFL players. Both look very nice and have been available at many leading retail stores. At a buck fifty each, it's a fairly cheap addition to one's collection.

One thing I have noticed from the soda pop side of the house is that there is no talk on how much these bottles cost to make. Most of the breweries who at one time liked the idea, but are now out of the aluminum bottle business, all seemed to use this for their bottle's demise. Will this happen with the soda industry as well? I don't think it will, as they have a pretty good thing going. Unlike the brewery industry, they get to play the odds with impulse buying. Everyone does it, and tying in with leading retailers as they do, they can't go wrong. Age plays another factor, as you don't have to be 21 to buy a soda pop.

A sales flaw I see with the brewing industry is for the large part only making the commemorative bottles available at certain venues. Believe it or not, not everyone who drinks beer frequents bars, and with the way the economy is, not many can afford to take in a professional ball game either. At least some of the teams back East make the bottles available at local distributors or convenience stores. Kudos to them!

The future of the aluminum bottle with the US Brewery Industry is yet to be determined. I for one think that once everything settles down at AB In-Bev, things will return to normal. Maybe I'm looking through rose colored glasses, but I await with open arms and great anticipation the next round of commemorative bottles.

Until next time.....

ABC Secretary/Treasurer's Report

Bruce Gregg ABC# 003

The current membership in our Aluminum Bottle CANnoisseurs Chapter now totals 144. Thirty two (32) new members joined at Convention and an additional 14 have joined from Convention to this date. Eighteen (18) members did not renew their dues to the ABC representing a loss of 16.8%. However a similar calculation on new members, not subject to renewals, shows a significant increase of 53.3% growth. This stat demonstrates to me that our ABC Chapter is still in a healthy growth state.

The stats on our growth are as follows:

May 07 - July 07	60
Convention Sept 07	13
August 07 - October 07	10
November 07 - December 07	14
January 08 - April 08	11
May 08 – July 08	8
August 08	2
Convention Aug 08	32
Sept.08 – January 09	14
TOTAL NUMBERS ISSUED	164

2009 Renewals:

We have now successfully completed our 2009 Renewal Process and, although we did lose a few members as described above, I think that our results are excellent. The economic times are hard but we still grew substantially. We might consider the ABC to be, in part, an outstanding "stress relief".

I believe that covers the news of the day from the Secretary Treasurers point of view. Best to all in your aluminum bottle collecting.

ABC Lends a Helping Hand

Back in October after the remnants of Hurricane Ike swept through the country we at the ABC decided to lend a hand to a fellow BCCA'er drastically affected by the storm. Terry Dunn BCCA 2263 (BCCA Magazine Foreign Can Columnist), home was damaged by Ike. We sent Terry a small check and a letter to let him know we're all thinking of him and hoping the recovery is swift and somewhat painless. Below is the text of our letter and an update from Terry.

October 7, 2008

Dear Terry:

Your friends in the Aluminum Bottle CANnoisseurs Chapter express our deep regrets for your recent losses & significant damage to your home due to hurricane Ike. You and your family are living with a level of devastation that the rest of us really can't even imagine.

If the news that we have heard is accurate, it is a blessing that you and your family were not harmed, at least in a physical way. It is our most sincere hope that you are able to get your home back in order and repair in short order, although from the sounds of the damage, you all have a big job in front of you.

Enclosed is a small check in the amount of $100 that the ABC Chapter wants to give to you and your family just to let you know that we are all thinking of you. You have given a lot of yourself to the BCCA over many years and we hope that this gift in your time of need says that we all care.

You and your family will definitely remain in our thoughts and prayers. We hope that future news will show you are on a good path toward a return to normal.

Our very best to you,

January 11, 2009

Hello Bruce,

First, a big overdue Thank you for the check you sent after Hurricane Ike. As I last reported the storm hit on Sunday, September 14. The afternoon of the storm the wind started with somewhat typical, 20 to 25 mph gusts. Not unusual when the weather changes here in Ohio. Then about 5:30 the wind started increasing. By 6:15 PM the winds were unlike most have ever seen in Ohio. The wind was consistently above 50 MPH until 7:30 PM with gusts close to 75 MPH. We were having neighbors over for dinner that evening. They were to arrive at 6:30 PM. Before they arrived they had a large branch blow down and at 6:15 we lost power (unrelated). They arrived at 6:30 and we planned to eat what was ready, which was about half of what Laura had planned to serve. We started to eat and all heck broke loose. The biggest half of a very large/tall maple tree snapped off about 15 feet off the ground and fell across the backyard with the small end branches just brushing our sun porch. We thought that we were very lucky at that point.

That gust tore the gate off the other neighbors stockade fence which allowed the dogs to get out. The neighbor, Laura, and I went over to secure the fence and gather in the dogs. They were not home and Laura noticed that their slider on the deck was open and things inside the house were blowing around so she went to close the glass slider and lower the patio umbrella. The neighbor and I had started making our way to our back deck when an extremely large gust completely uprooted a 60 to 70 foot high maple that was about 25 feet from the house and sent it down into our garage. Laura was just 15 feet away from the tree when it went down. I tried to run to her, but the tree blocked my path from the deck to her so I went through the house and out the front door so I could go around the house. When I opened the front the door the top of the tree was hanging across the front sidewalk.

I brought Laura into the house and tried to calm her when just about 15 minutes later we were looking out the windows of the sun porch only to watch two more maples about 15 to 20 feet from first, uproot simultaneously. Both of these trees were 50 to 60 feet tall and were about 4 feet apart. They fell on the second story of the house, one hitting the corner bathroom and the other hitting directly in the backside, middle of the house on another bathroom.

The strange thing is that through this entire storm we had no rain. Officials claimed that the damage across Ohio was one of the most expensive natural disasters in Ohio history. Damage to our house alone was $90,000. We found that insurance paid to remove the trees from the house, but only $500 toward the removal of the trees and limbs from the property. They charged us $4500 to remove the trees from the home and another $3550 to remove the remnants. Your donation was applied to the tree clean-up.

The morning after the storm the trees were removed from the house starting at 11:00 AM, they were gone even before we had lined up a contractor. The tree man asked if we had a contractor, and I commented that we had not been able to contact anyone yet. He said that his son-in-law was a contractor and I had heard of the company. The tree man asked if I would want his s-i-l to come and at our insurance agent's urging we agreed. The contractor was very prompt and we had temporary repairs and tarps on the house by 5 PM that night.

Then things go from bad to worse. It took the insurance company over 2 weeks to get an adjustor to the house. She was all the way from New York and was great. She worked with the contractor for two days preparing the estimate. At the end of the 2nd day she pulled out the check book and started writing checks. Since we have a loan on the property the checks were written in the bank and our names. We took the checks to the bank hoping to have work start immediately. The story turns bad. The bank notified us that they could not do business with the contractor. We found that he had some business gone bad with the bank and they would not recommend or allow him to work on the house. We were pissed at the start and then were grateful to the bank after we found a second contractor (which took another week).

We were lucky that only the end truss was damaged on the corner bathroom. Repair happened quickly, however all four bedroom ceilings were removed so that the middle six trusses of the house could be removed and replaced. The garage involved all the trusses to be replaced. Our total timeline was something like this: out of the house (no electric) from Sept 14 to Sept 19. Back in the house and getting ready for construction to begin, out of the house October 18 and back in on December 14. Even though we moved back in on December 14 we are still a work in progress although each day brings us closer to completion. We got the painter out of here this last Monday. We were very fortunate that my wife's parents have enough room and invited us to stay with them during construction.

The ironic thing is that in 1998 on August 25 we had the same thing happen to the same house. We were out 3 months that time.

The great thing is that nobody was hurt and we lost very little in the way of stuff. However every time the wind blows we get very nervous and if it happens during the night we loose lots of sleep.

Thank you for your thoughts and support during this rather disruptive time and I hope to see you all very soon.

*BRUCE,
PLEASE FORWARD MY THANKS TO ALL THE "CABBOTTLES"
THANKS,
TERRY*

My Find (Score) of the Year

Butch Kroskey ABC# 008

While at the Renner Show in Austintown, Ohio back in November I had an individual come up to me and ask if I was interested in buying any aluminum bottles. I immediately thought to myself, that's all I need, more bottles. Well I stalled around and finally towards the end of the show I found him again and asked to see what he had.

Well I quickly remembered what it felt like to be a kid in a candy store. I was expecting a bunch of Bud or Bud Light commons, maybe at best a few older Michelob's. There were 32 bottles in all he wanted to off-load and once he said what he wanted for them, I couldn't get the money out quick enough. Definitely a find and since he was happy to get rid of them I immediately passed the saving on to a few of my fellow ABC'ers. Sure I could've went the eBay road with these, but by trading them off very reasonably, every one is happy and I don't feel like I stole these.

Pictured are a few included with what's listed below:

6 Molson Kicks (2 different)	2 Moosedrools w/Fishing Pole
1 Red Taboo Vodka	6 JW Dundee's Pale Ale (different writing)
2 Miller Lite #829044	1 Road House
4 La Benedicta (2 different)	2 Presidente
2 Presidente Light	4 XX LAGER (2 different)
3 Catalyst (2 different)

Sometimes being in the right place at the right time will fall right in your lap. I must admit that I got lucky these made it to the end of the show as they were probably bound for the recycle bin, what a shame that would've been.

To Cap or Not To Cap

Bob Renforth ABC# 001

Collecting cabottles without a cap is a dilemma for some folks. Especially if you collect them full as I do. It's quite obvious that the cabottle looks a lot better up on the shelf if the cap is attached. Some compare it to collecting beer cans that are bottom opened. Well we all know that in a pinch, we'll pick up that tough variation that doesn't have a cap, or for that matter isn't full. Yes, even I have a handful of empties in my collection.

We've all seen our share of unique ways of removing the caps, in hopes of not damaging them. Anywhere from putting a coin on top while using a church key, to going that extra mile and fabricating your own opener. I've even seen some idiot on eBay state that the cabottles he was selling were carefully bottom opened to preserve the pristine cap on top. Now with the cabottle being 3 times the thickness of a regular beer can, I find this hard to believe. Not that it couldn't be done, but that he was stupid enough to try it. (If said idiot is reading this article, disregard the last statement.)

While at the Convention this year, I was introduced to a bottle capper. Sure, I had seen one before, but had never used one. The finished product looked like it had just come from the brewery. They do a fantastic job with new caps as well as replacing the original cap, although you may have to do some tin smoothing if your cap has a big crease in it.

The bottle capper is a perfect solution for adding that finishing touch to your collection. I was so impressed that I decided to pick one up on eBay. You can also find them at your local home brewing shops. Some of the antique ones are really neat looking and add that bit of nostalgia to your collection. Imagine that!

What's New

Jerome (Spinney) Spindler ABC# 006

Hi everyone, I hope you all had a great holiday season. I think it could have been better if a few breweries would have come out with some aluminum bottles for the holiday season. Sort of missed them this year, if you know what I mean.

Not a whole lot new, except for a last minute drop in from Miller. They have come out with an aluminum Miller Lite bottle (longneck) # 834746. Not bad looking. Would have looked better with some Christmas lights and a few Christmas decorations, but we'll take what we can get.

I would like to thank Butch Kroskey for the picture of the bottle. See you next time, Spin

These designs from Great Lake Brewing never made it to the shelves. What a shame, would have been a nice series.

Aluminum Soda Bottles

Joe Prin ABC# 011

These Coke bottles are from Spoleto Restaurant in Brazil. They are a promotional bottle with special cap, and no bar code on them. I lifted the photo from a December ebay auction that says that they were only available at the Spoleto and not in stores.

On the Domestic side, I am encouraged by the release of the 6 bottle NFL / Pepsi set, in addition to their 4 bottle retro set. These full size bottles from Pepsi show that they are looking hard at making a go of this packaging. Obviously trying to capitalize on the success of the Mountain Dew sets recently issued. We should see many more Pepsi's out soon. (Photos lifted from somebody's auction.)

With the increase in soda issues, and the slowing of beer aluminum bottle issues, this may be a good time to gather up the sodas from the past and fill some shelves. The colorful printing on the sodas are very good.

Come... Come to the Dark Side... These are the bottles you've been looking for.... "Jedi Mind Trick"

Foreign Bottles

Juan Carlos De Marco ABC# 031

Greetings everyone. Well I spent the last couple issues talking about some of the older releases in Japan. Figured it was time to start updating on some of the newer stuff from Europe. They have been going strong for years with the aluminum bottles and don't show any sign of slowing down.

Pictured this time are newer releases from Western Europe; France, Belgium, Spain and several others. There are several nice sets out including the Despeados from France and the Liefman set from Belgium. Heineken also has several releases for different countries, some are imports while others are brewed and bottled under contract.

Next edition I'll try and get us caught up on the rest of Europe. There are many other countries putting these out like crazy, so I may have to have Brad allocate a few more pages. The states may be a little slow in getting bottles out, but the rest of the world seems to be on the ball.

Belgium; Stella Artois 1st Edition 330ml, Stella Artois 330ml, Stella Artois 2nd Edition 330ml front/back shown, Liefmans 4 bottle set

France; Chaudron Vert 30th UEFA Cup 1976 300ml, Heineken Paco 330ml front/back shown, Heineken Circle, Heineken Cone, Jenlain Biere Blonde Gingembre, Jenlain Biere Degarde Blonde Gingembre, Jenlain Biere Blonde Absinthe, Jenlain Biere Degarde Blonde Absinthe

France; DB Blonde Speciale 300ml, Kronenbourg, Stella Artois Cannes Festival 2004, Deperados 1st Edition 330ml front/back shown, Desperados 9eme Concept Cyan 330ml, Desperados 9eme Concept Jaune 330ml, Desperados 9eme Concept Magenta 330ml

Luxembourg; Simon Regal 330ml

Monaco; Propaganda Red Guarana

Portugal; Super Bock (Blacklight)

UK; Heineken Cone (import), Baux Beer 330ml

Spain; Estrella Levante Ltd Ed, Estrella Damm Custo 09, Estrella Damm Master Series front/back shown, San Miguel 0.0%, San Miguel 0.0% Manzanas, San Miguel 0.0% Love Surf, San Miguel Ciudades del Mundo, Heineken Paco (brewed in Sevilla) 330ml, Mixta Mahou

What's New in A-B?!

Brad Ambruso ABC# 007

Talk about slow, AB is barely averaging one bottle per month. With all the merger business going on right now I can kind of understand them wanting to take a look at everything, but let's get back to it already. I have been in contact with several people at AB and the only new one for sure is another Bud Light 'St Pats Day' bottle. The design is real similar to last year and won't be sure of any changes till they're released. Bud Light is also changing their design on all glass and aluminum, should be out in a couple months. The break in the action has been welcome. I have had some time to catch-up and build shelves, but sooner or later some new stuff would be nice.

The Bud Light 'United Way 08' bottle was released as expected. It is almost identical to last years except it has the 2008 campaign referenced rather than 2007. And of course the number is different.

Two new Budweiser's did surface, both are export bottles. The first is the Paraguay bottle. It's a standard silver version with the white bottom front info in milliliter. The back is real similar to the Argentina bottle, with different wording. The cap is a standard Budweiser bow-tie rather than the 'Bud' cap found on the Argentina. The second bottle to surface was an Ireland export. Again a standard silver with white bottom front except it simply says 'BEER' with 473ml and alcohol content, no AB info on front. The back is also much different than most, just brewed by AB and imported by Guinness along with the web address. The cap is a "Bud" cap, like the Argentina bottle.

'Bud' Caps found on the Ireland and Argentina export bottles

As of the last issue the Bud Light 'Celtics' bottle had not been released or verified. Well the NBA finally approved it, so the only verified bottle from the past is:

Bud Light 'Boston Celtics 2008 Champions', 16oz redemption, 501412

Bud Light 'United Way 08' 501430
16oz redemption

Budweiser 'Ireland' 501386
473ml (16oz) non-redem

Budweiser 'Paraguay' 501432
473ml (16oz) non-redem

Cabottle Go-With's

Mark Mahy ABC# 060

A few things found that always make interesting go-with's. Many thanks to Bob Renforth ABC# 001 for the pictures.

An oldie but a goodie. If you can find the POS flyers, they always make good collectibles.

Brushed aluminum wine bottles designed by Social UK. Well if the beer bottles don't pick up...

Looks like it would be pretty handy. Of coarse you wouldn't want to use it on a tough cap.

The Dew posters usually show up around the displays. Most retailers won't put them out though, so if you know someone.
