The Prez Sez Bob Renforth ABC# 001

Hello fellow CANnoisseurs! Have you ever given any thought to the significance of a certain day? Take April 1st for example. Better known as April Fools Day, it is a day of pranks and frivolousness for most. Well for me it's a little more, it's my anniversary. Yeah, I get a few chuckles every time I mention it, but we've been married now for 29 years so I guess the jokes on them. I will say this though; I've never forgotten my anniversary! Well, now we all have another reason to remember April 1st. It's the day that Boulevard Brewery in Kansas City released their first aluminum bottle, Boulevard Unfiltered Wheat Beer. And what a beauty it is. We can only hope it's a big success for them so they might consider putting some of their other brands in aluminum. Good job Boulevard! Hopefully other micros will follow suit.

AB Inbev has released several new baseball sets as well as the newly redesigned Bud Light bottle. I won't bore you in naming the teams they've released this year as I'm sure Brad will have a lot to say about them in his column. I'm anxious to see if they will redesign the Budweiser bottle as well, bringing it in line with their new cans. I'm sure most of you have seen the new Budweiser 24 oz can by now. It is quite the change from the standard Budweiser label of the last two or three decades. A really sharp design.

Miller has also redesigned one of their two Miller Lite aluminum bottles to match their new cans. Doing so with the bottle having the twist off cap leads one to believe they may not continue with the long neck bottle with the pry off cap. This would be a shame as I don't know anyone who likes the smaller bottle. If anyone spots the redesigned long neck bottle, please let us all know.

The soda bottles have seemed to take a breather for the time being. An occasional new coke product pops up here and there, mostly overseas. Some of you were able to add the China 2008 Olympic WE8 bottle set to your collections thanks to member Stuart Gellis #043. Stuart relayed that the bottles were readily available in Las Vegas. I'm sure the store in LV was wondering what was going on when they started receiving all the calls. LOL! Thanks again Stuart!

As you read this, the CANvention is just over four months away. Being more geographically centralized this year, I'm sure attendance will be pretty high. Word to the wise, register now! Speaking of CANvention dealings, the ABC submitted three names for the BCCA's Hall of Fame award (HOF). They were; Grace Fiskus #15122, our own Tom Hull #13294, and John Fredrickson #4966. If any of them appear in the next BCCA magazine as nominees, please take the time and vote for them in their quest for this honored position. Winner(s) will be announced at the CANvention. Good luck to all nominees.

Bringing this to a close, I would like to thank the members who take the time to make the new releases available to the rest of us. It takes a dedicated person to do so and you should know that you are the cornerstone of this organization. Keep up the good work folks!

The current membership in our Aluminum Bottle CANnoisseurs Chapter now totals 154. We have had 4 new members join our group since our last Cabottle Times publication in 1/09. From my perspective we continue to be an extremely strong, healthy, and vibrant chapter. Cabottle collecting is still the hottest collectible item in our whole breweriana hobby. Plus we cover just about all ends of the planet earth.

The stats on our growth are as follows:

May 07 - July 07	60
Convention Sept 07	13
August 07 - October 07	10
November 07 - December 07	14
January 08 - April 08	11
May 08 - July 08	8
August 08	2
Convention Aug 08	32
September 08 - January 09	14
February 09 - April 09	4
TOTAL NUMBERS ISSUED	168
Total Current Members (4/09)	154

Perspective:

In the US the number of new Cabottle releases over the last 3 to 6 months has sure been slow. However, this gave a number of members time to pursue filling in some of the holes in their collection. More recently, there have been a number of new releases and the new AB 2009 Sports Cabottles are now starting to hit collectors hands. E-mail traffic is really picking up. Fantastic! We sometimes may take our e-mail for granted, but, to me, it is one of the lifelines of our chapter and a real incentive to being an ABC member.

Best to all in your aluminum bottle collecting.

My Collection

Chip Viering ABC# 039

Hi, I'm Chip Viering ABC #39. I've been collecting beer cans since 1975/76, slowed down during college, and then migrated away from the hobby from early 90's until early 2001. I have been really enjoying myself with the hobby for the past 7/8 years – the release of the aluminum bottles has rekindled a vibe I haven't had since the first days I started collecting... That vibe started with the mesmerizing Iron City Pittsburgh Steelers 1975 Super bowl can and the almost risqué (for 5th grade) Frothingslosh Series – by the time the bicentennial cans were released, my collection was the talk of the neighborhood!

I got the Aluminum Bottle bug probably about a year after the first were released, so I'm missing the earliest bottles in my collection, having filled in a lot of the early ones by purchasing Mark Austin's collection in 07... I do not actively seek out Foreign bottles, but I have a few in the collection.... If I come across a good trade I'll pick them up. I try to collect the A/B bottles but I don't collect all the variations of each release, pretty much all of mine are redemption versions. I also do not have the New Years or Halloween black light bottles... I'm curious if we will see more Micro Breweries experiment with the aluminum bottles like Blvd. That would add a brand new dimension to the hobby ... By the going rate of the Halloween bottle these days, we might be the first to collect this legacy collectable!

The Man Cave – or Mantopia as I like to call it

Obviously I need a better display solution, I'm working on it!

My real passion, 7 oz, 8 oz, 10 oz and 11 oz flats and zips (in the center)

Stacked 3 deep! Who wants to come over and help build shelves?!

Editors Note: Many thanks to Chip for taking a few minutes to show us his collection. Any and all members are welcome to share their collections here. Simply send it in and I will get it posted.

A variation or not... (Stickers)

Brad Ambruso ABC# 007

In addition to my regular 'What's New in A-B' column I've decided to occasionally touch on some of the lesser known/questionable A-B variations. I'm doing this to help clear up some questions on these as they can be somewhat confusing. There are quite a few A-B variations floating around that some may consider not worth the trouble to collect as they are so close to another variation or the change may seem to be a mute point. Well being an Anheuser-Busch only collector (aluminum bottles and cans), I live and die by the variations. Not to mention the fact that some of them are pretty cool.

Budweiser Argentina 500358 and 500611 showing rear UPC and mandatory stickers

Argentine mandatory info sticker

I'll start this series by talking about some of the 'Sticker' variations. There are four known "Sticker" variations and all were for export. Three were for export to Argentina and a lesser known variation was for England.

The English variation is an older Budweiser 500153 with a gold sticker covering the bottom front info and a rear sticker that covers all the mandatory info and replaces with the English information.

The three variations for Argentina were all Budweiser's, 500358, 500610 and 500611. All three variations had a new UPC (bar code) sticker applied over the original and another sticker with the Argentine mandatory info in Spanish was placed on the bottle.

The weird part about all these variations is the fact that these stickers had to be placed pretty precise. What a tedious job that must have been.

What's New

Jerome (Spinney) Spindler ABC# 006

Well there are several new bottles out there to talk about. First off, Miller Lite has a new design for their bottles. We show both a non-redemption bottle (#836003) and a redemption bottle (#836092). I am guessing it is out there as a 3.2% bottle but I have not heard any reports confirming that. Nice new design and a good looking bottle.

Next we have Boulevard's Unfiltered Wheat Beer out of Kansas City Mo. It is a very nice looking bottle from only the second micro brewery in the US to produce an aluminum bottle. This is a must for your collection. Boulevard tried a few different designs before they settled with the final product. I believe there are a lot of members looking for the two prototypes including me. Let me know if you have any for trade.

I think once the economy gets turned around we should see some more bottles and stuff out there. But then what do I know. Until next time, Spin

Following press release reprinted from Brewnews.org

Boulevard Brewing introduces Unfiltered Wheat in aluminum bottles

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 5, 2009 – Boulevard Brewing Company today announced the debut of a 16-ounce aluminum bottle for Unfiltered Wheat Beer, the brewery's most popular offering. The package is expected to enhance distribution opportunities in locations where glass is prohibited, such as golf courses, pools, concert venues, and some outdoor events. The new metal bottles will hit the market beginning April 1.

The company's choice of the container represents a departure from an exclusive reliance on the traditional glass bottle. "The environmental advantages of aluminum were an important consideration," explained John McDonald, Boulevard founder and president, "but we added this package primarily to give consumers access to our beer in places that won't allow glass and don't have draught capabilities." McDonald, an art school graduate, also cited design opportunities as a factor in the decision. "While great-tasting beer remains our top priority, we've always put a lot of effort and energy into producing beautiful packaging. The aluminum bottle presented our in-house creative team with an exciting new canvas, and I think they've done a fantastic job."

Boulevard's new state-of-the-art bottling line – installed in late 2008 at a cost of nearly $6 million – is being used to package both its traditional glass bottles and the new metal containers. Current plans call for limiting use of the aluminum bottle to its flagship Unfiltered Wheat Beer, which will continue to be offered in 6-, 12-, and 20-packs of 12-ounce glass bottles.

About Boulevard Brewing Company

Boulevard Brewing Company has grown to be the largest specialty brewer in the Midwest, dedicated to the craft of producing fresh, flavorful beers using traditional ingredients and the best of both old and new brewing techniques. Boulevard's portfolio of six year-round and five seasonal beers are available in a 17-state region stretching from Utah to Alabama, and from North Dakota to Texas.

The two Boulevard Wheat prototypes. Notice both have the shorter neck paint and the differences in the "Wheat Beer" layout. Also neither bottle has 16 FL OZ on the bottom front. The bottle on the left has a metallic paint while the one on the right is similar to the released version.

Aluminum Soda Bottles

Joe Prin ABC# 011

Coca-Cola Sziget Festival - Aluminum bottle from Hungary This bottle was never sold in shops. Limited production of 30,000 for a Hungarian music festival. Must have been quite a festival!

Even though it seems like the production of beer aluminum bottles has slowed, the soda ones just keep coming! Here are a few that I spotted on eBay recently. If you are needing to find something new to collect, you might look at the recent offerings from Coca-Cola international. They are really getting with it on the graphics and colors. And being Coke, you know there are people world wide going after them

The eBay description on this reads "There was a large house party at lake Balaton this summer, and this bottle was distributed there as a promotional gift to all the visitors. (This special event was sponsored by the Coca Cola, of course.) Only 20000 pieces were made. So this is the rarest Coke aluminum bottle in Hungary." Must have been one heck of a party. I am seeing a pattern to events in Hungary!

The claim on this one is that it is the first Sprite aluminum bottle ever. These bottles were not sold retail in the USA. Produced by The Coca-Cola Company

I am not sure if I have shown this full set before. If not, here it is. This is the Coca-Cola M5 aluminum bottle set from Belgium

Coca Cola "Faithless & Paranoid" bottle from Hungary. I have no other info on this one but why do I feel that there was a party involved somewhere along the way. With a title like that, it has to be good. Reminds me of my Senior year in High School.

Foreign Bottles

Juan Carlos De Marco ABC# 031

Coming back from my summer vacations here down south in Argentina (I recommend our amazing beaches and their occupants, mostly females), it would be my pleasure to continue to introduce you to some new and not so new releases from the old continent. We'll look at seven other countries that I didn't cover in the last issue and throw in Australia for good measure.

GERMANY: Always surprises us with new bottles, but actually they were not in on the golden years when dozens of bottles were featured worldwide. Anyway, 3 of their typical breweries are represented "Beck's", "Radeberger" and "Karlsberg", very attractive, by the way.

ITALY: Comes with a small "Dieci" 2007 golden limited edition. A cutie.

SAN MARINO: The smallest country in Europe (after Vatican City), doesn't want to be in last place, so they enter the bottles world with "Puramania", more as a tourist attraction than big sales. Anyway, nice try... we love it...LOL

TURKEY: I would imagine that for market reasons they released a 330 cl. "Efes", very simple and regular, comparing with the better designed "Efes" made under license in Russia... but is just my particular taste.

Germany: Beck's 300ml, Radeberger Pilsner 330ml, Karlsberg Mixery Bier 330ml

Italy: Dieci 330ml

San Marino: Puramania 330ml

Turkey: Efes

Georgia: Kazbegi Platinum 50cc

Israel: Goldstar 2007 330ml, Goldstar 2008 330ml

Russia: Becks, Efes, Stella Artois, Sixx 330ml, Tabu Silver , Tabu Gold, Tabu Red, Cab Dragonfruit 330ml

Australia: Becks 330ml, Crown Lager 330ml, Crown Lager 2008 330ml,
Fosters 330ml, Stella Artois 2nd Edition 330ml

GEORGIA: A non-traditional cabottles producer, surprised us with a 500 cc. "Kazbegi Platinum" tall and attractive. A good one to have at home.

ISRAEL: Is present with two "Goldstar" bottles, made in 2007 and 2008. Surely they have a special taste to design the cabottles, modern and fresh.

RUSSIA: bottled under foreign licenses as the shown "Stella Artois" (Belgium), "Beck's" (Germany), and "Efes" (Turkey), nice and attractive, but also present their own "Sixx", "Cab Dragonfruit" and "Tabu" with a good cosmetic and taste.

AUSTRALIA: "Stella Artois" and "Beck's" obtained as imported cabottles, a good piece of the market... We already wrote about the presence of Stella worldwide, but on Beck's case, is only exported to Barbados, Trinidad & Tobago, New Zealand, and Russia, beside Australia. Then "Crown" on it's regular and "Champagne" shape edition are the natives, with the logical "owner" of the market "Foster's". All beautiful pieces.

Well it looks like between these and those in the last issue most of Europe has been covered. For the next edition I'll scour through the old editions and pick out missed bottles and start to catch-up on new releases from everywhere. If you happen to run across a foreign variation and haven't seen it in one of my columns, please let me know and we'll get it in.

What's New in A-B?!

Brad Ambruso ABC# 007

Well it's spring again and that can only mean one thing, Major League Baseball bottles. Before we jump into that, I'll discuss a couple other changes.

Bud Light finally got around to a major label change. They've gone with a vertical and horizontal label display and changed the neck logo to just 'BL', with small Bud Light writing. They have also added the catch phrases "Superior Drinkability" and "Smooth and Refreshing" to the bottle. These phrases go along with their new marketing campaign and the bottles now look like all the new cans.

Bud Select also has a new bottle, though not quite as drastic a change as the Bud Light. The front label now has a much larger wording below the crown. The lettering color is still silver and this change also puts the Bud Select bottles in line with all the new cans. An older Bud Select version from Puerto Rico did surface just recently. Bud Select 501204 is the same as last years Bud Selects except for the Puerto Rico with some Spanish writing on the back panel. May prove to be a tough one to find since it arrived late and there will probably be a new variation release for Puerto Rico.

Michelob Ultra 501287 bottles now have new caps. They are white rather than the blue we've all been used to seeing. A variation or not... I may have to revisit this in my other column sometime along with other cap changes.

One that Juan Carlos may have covered in a previous issue is Estrella Damm from S.A. Damm, Barcelona, Spain. The only reason this bottle has shown up in this column is because of a few words on the back panel. "Imported into the UK by: Anheuser-Busch Ltd.", then a UK address. Does this qualify as an A-B bottle? Well it does say Anheuser-Busch on it so I'll leave it up to you fellow A-B collectors to make the call. We will probably see more of these since InBev now own the A-B logo along with most of the other worldwide brands.

OK its baseball time. As usual we have a bunch of Bud and Bud Light MLB bottles to hunt down. This year A-B at least changed the bottles in a major way. Instead of just adding the MLB logo to the front, they've totally redesigned the bottles. All the bottles still have the MLB logo on the bottom front but they added an elongated triangle down the bottle with the team logo toward the center, very sleek. Four teams also have a commemorative event on the bottle. The Phillies have the World Series, Cardinals have the All-Star game, Mets have inaugural season for Citi Field and the Yankees have inaugural season for their new stadium.

Of the 24 baseball bottles to be released, 19 have been confirmed. The only ones missing, as of this article, are San Francisco Giants Bud Light and both the Mets and Yankees non-redemption Bud and Bud Lights. In addition to those pictured, released bottles are:

Budweiser: Cardinals 501488, Nationals 501477, Angels 501492, Orioles 501479

Bud Light: Cardinals 501489, Cubs 501483, National 501478, Angels 501493, Orioles 501480

Cabottle Go-With's

Mark Mahy ABC# 060

For those who like to collect the packaging also; Of course the box design followed the bottles, also notice the aluminum bottle in the lower right. Must have confused someone...

A modified opener can go a long way to help save those caps, this version works extremely well.

Thrill and Excitement

Bruce Gregg ABC # 003

Less than a month ago I completed shelving to house my Cabottle collection and, while it was a bit of work, it was a tremendous thrill to be able to house them all in one place. Prior to this construction project I only had a single shelving unit in my beer can room that would hold about 80 Cabottles, so most of my Cabottle collection was relegated to case boxes. The cutting, staining, nailing, and placement of the shelves was a neat woodworking project. But then the excitement came into the picture when I carefully cleaned each Cabottle, checked it against my computer listing, and then placed it on the shelf in its proper sequence. Wow! This was a neat experience. Almost like starting from scratch with a new collection or a new find. A good number of these Cabottles had not been seen for a year plus. Now I could see them all and they were indeed turning into a "Collection".

Now I did not find any Cabottles beyond what I had checked off on my list as being in my collection. Unfortunately, I could not find 8 Cabottles that I had listed as having "in my collection". I keep thinking that they must be in some box somewhere, but I have not stumbled upon them as of yet. In the last month I did manage to replace 3 of the 8 but there are 5 more to go. I will no doubt find my missing box just as soon as I finish the replacement task.

I still like my flat top can collection but the wall of Cabottles has become really dear to my heart.

Now I have room for about another year's worth of new releases before I need to become inventive again on where to add additional shelving in my already overcrowded display room. Unfortunately the new shelves will not hold my Pepsi and Mountain Dew Cabottles, but they are up on the old shelf with limited space. More innovation is necessary. Maybe I need to build on to the house.
