The Prez Sez Bob Renforth ABC# 001

Hello fellow CANnoisseurs! If you look up the word rivalry in a dictionary, one of the definitions you'll find for it is competition. With the release of several sport related bottles from Miller Lite, I believe it has stoked the waning embers at AB-InBev and formed a new competition. That for aluminum bottle dominance! We are once again seeing a resurgence of new bottles from AB-InBev. New releases include seven World Cup variations, MLB All Star bottles, and a Chicago Blackhawks Championship bottle. Future releases include a bottle for the Super Bowl Champion New Orleans Saints, as well as a Bud Light Golden Wheat bottle.

Speaking of the World Cup bottles, I'd lay odds that the Vietnamese bottle will probably be the hardest one to acquire out of all of them. I don't know of anyone who has any connections there, and see very little movement on eBay as far as regular Vietnamese beer cans go. I was lucky enough to purchase one on eBay when they first appeared in May, but it looks like that source has dried up as well. If anyone in the chapter has a source for them, or any other W/C bottles for that matter, let us know via the forum.

Back in March while attending a trade show in Las Vegas, a long time buddy of mine in John Smoller and I went micro beer hunting at the local liquor stores. Upon our surprise, we found a few brands that were brewed right down the road in Henderson, NV. Being the adventurers that we are, we decided to take a short road trip. Once we found the place we were welcomed in and given a nice tour of the place and were even lucky enough to try a few samples. We stood around for over an hour discussing the hobby with the owner and chief brew master, when lo and behold the conversation turned to aluminum bottles. Imagine that! It appears that the owner is seriously thinking of putting one of their beers in an aluminum bottle. He had already researched the sources and was leaning heavily towards the idea. What are the odds of that; taking a road trip to search out new beers and discovering that right around the corner we may have another micro brewery putting out an aluminum bottle. Fantastic! I'll keep you posted.

Well, here we are already in our third year as a chapter, and I believe we're doing pretty good. We currently have 148 members which equates to a terrific trading base, and a whole lotta friends! It's a shame that not all of our members have taken advantage of our website, and especially our forum. If they only knew what they were missing. Using it, I have personally added several bottles to my collection. If you're a registered forum user and you know that some of your friends aren't, get them to register. The more the merrier! We may even gain a few new members.

Remember, chapter elections will be held at our annual meeting during the CANvention this year. Although I won't be attending, I'd be honored to stay on as Chapter President for another go around. For those of you who are attending, especially those who will be attending their first CANvention, prepare yourself for an awesome event. Remember to take in all the sights and be sure to take lots of photographs, but most of all take the time to meet as many ABC'ers as you can. You'll be glad you did!

With that being said, and until next time, enjoy the Newsletter!

We are starting our renewal cycle now. The dues are still $5.00 per year and a family member is $1.00. Hard copy mailings are an additional $10.00 for delivery in the US. As always, you can pay for multiple years. I will be in contact with anyone who didn't pay for multiple years last year and their renewal is coming up

At the 2010 CANvention dues will be collected by Butch Kroskey at my table on the floor, room or during our meeting and please only by me. We will not be taking renewals at the Chapter table, unless I'm there, just new member applications. As soon as I receive my table assignment, I will contact all the members with that information.

Chapter Tidbits

This year is an election year for the chapter. All seven Officer and Board positions are up for grabs. We have the four Officers (President, Vice President, Secretary/Treasurer and Newsletter Editor) and three Board Members. If anyone is interested in running for any of these positions, please let any current Officer/Board member know and we'll add your name to the ballot. You DO NOT have to be at the CANvention meeting to have your name on the ballot. You DO have to be at the meeting to vote. We will also have write-ins if someone can't make up their mind until the meeting. This is everyone's chance to get involved, so why not give it a shot?

The annual ABC Chapter CANvention meeting will be on Thursday, September 9 @ 5pm in the Hemlock Room (Radisson).

Once again we will be having a raffle at our chapter table. The raffle will be on Saturday, September 11 at about noon. We will be selling raffle tickets at the table on Thursday and Friday. We have a pretty good assortment of prizes starting to accumulate but we could use a few more. If anyone has anything they would like to donate to the raffle get a hold of Tobi or Butch. If you have an exceptional bottle/piece but it's too much to donate, we are looking to purchase a couple items so again, contact Tobi or Butch and we'll work out a deal. (A nice New Years black light would make a great grand prize, hint, hint...)

Volunteers are also needed again to staff the chapter table. We will have the table open during floor hours and up till noon on Saturday when we do the raffle. If anyone would be interested in helping out, contact Butch.

Exal Revisited

Brad Ambruso ABC# 007

Last year, right after CANvention, a few ABC Members took the journey over to Exal in Youngstown, OH. I, unfortunately missed that trip and when Butch Kroskey ABC# 008 set up another tour, I jumped at the chance.

Upon our arrival we had the opportunity to talk with Paul Goodemote, Operations Manager and Keith Mitchell, R&D Manager, who gave us some very informative information and answered several looming questions we had. (No MLB series this year, just the Angels).

While we were getting ready for the tour one of our ABC Members, Richard (Dr Dickey) Gurevitz ABC# 022, who just happened to be featured in an episode of "Hoarders" was recognized by Patricia Roupe, Exal Director of First Impressions. Patricia (a huge "Hoarders" fan) was quite thrilled to meet Dr Dickey and it was quite a fun moment for all of us.

We started the tour (again, no photos allowed in the plant) down at the design room and it seemed everywhere we looked there were bottles on display. From the design room we went over to the start of a line, which just happened to be turning out the new Michelob Ultra bottles.

We were privileged to witness all the steps involved in making a bottle. I won't get into all the steps involved as they were covered in the Nov-Jan 10 issue, but one step that was really interesting is the neck extrusion press. It's a 17 step process where the cylinder is pounded down, trimmed and then the top gets crimped back to the finished product. Picture below shows the bottle at 5 stages in the process. After the extrusion process the bottles are inspected and bundled for shipment.

After our tour we all gathered again in the conference room. Of particular interest to me were all the prototype bottles that were on display. We were allowed to photograph and accumulate any info on these bottles. There were some seen from the last trip and a few I had never seen. An A-B 180 Energy drink in a 10 oz bottle caught my eye along with a few twist cap prototypes. All of the photos documenting these prototypes are on the ABC Chapter website.

We finished up with a group photo and all started our journeys home. A great trip and enough thanks can't go out to Exal for all their hospitality. I'm already looking forward to another trip someday soon.

C2C Aluminum Bottle Wins Dupont Diamond Award

Alcoa Inc. and Exal Corporation announced today that the lightweight, sustainable Coil-to-Can®, or “C2C”, aluminum bottle made from Alcoa’s bottlestock sheet and Exal’s C2C manufacturing technology won the top honor, a prestigious Diamond Award, in the 22nd annual DuPont Awards for Packaging Innovation. The DuPont Awards are the packaging industry’s longest running, independently judged competition, honoring packaging materials, technology and service innovations.

Diamond Award winners are those determined to demonstrate excellence in innovation, sustainability and cost/waste reduction by the judges, comprised of global packaging executives, industry experts and consultants, and industrial designers. This year 160 entries from around the world competed, and the Alcoa-Exal team was one of only two Diamond-level winners.

“This year we focused the DuPont Awards program on the essential elements needed to drive breakthroughs in packaging. Innovative new developments, along with cost/waste reduction and improved sustainability, are what packaged goods companies and retailers are seeking to respond to consumer needs,” said Carolann Haznedar, global business and market director, DuPont Packaging & Industrial Polymers in a press release announcing the award winners. “These winners demonstrate the kind of collaborative innovation that is needed to solve such multi-dimensional problems.”

Exal Corporation’s C2C technology combines the manufacturing speed and lightweight of standard drawn & ironed aluminum beverage can technology with dynamic shaping technology that at one time was only available with heavier walled extruded aluminum containers. In the past, all aluminum bottles for the North American market had been made using impact extrusion-based technology.

C2C aluminum bottles made from bottlestock sheet weigh about 40 percent less than impact extruded aluminum bottles, and while the wall thickness of the C2C container is thinner than the wall of the impact extruded bottle, the C2C bottle is stronger in the areas of container deformation and burst strength. In addition, the benefit of less metal and a higher run speed offers a competitive price when compared to an impact extruded aluminum beverage bottle. Most importantly, the C2C aluminum bottle is 100 percent recyclable and is “close looped,” meaning, like the aluminum beverage can, it can be remade into a new C2C aluminum bottle again and again.

Exal commercialized its Coil-to-Can® technology in 2008 with the production of aluminum bottles made from Alcoa bottlestock sheet for ESKA Still and Sparkling Water of Canada. This launch was followed by Coca-Cola using the inventive C2C aluminum bottle for several of its Coke soft drink brands. “We are very pleased to be recognized with the DuPont Packaging Awards’ highest honor for our commitment to innovation, sustainability and cost improvement. It is a testament to the power of the true partnership we have with Alcoa. We are particularly proud of the creative, committed, hardworking “Coil to Can” operations team at Exal that made the lightweight bottle a commercial reality,” said Edward B. Martin, Exal Business Development Aluminum bottle made from Alcoa’s bottlestock sheet and Exal’s Coil-to-Can manufacturing process Director.

“Alcoa is extremely proud and thankful for this highly regarded recognition as a DuPont Diamond Award winner. The C2C aluminum bottle offers breakthroughs in cost, innovation, sustainability and speed of manufacturing. The package is lighter, stronger and less expensive. It also compares favorably in weight, strength and cost to glass and PET bottles. There is now a low cost, re-sealable, recyclable, visually attractive aluminum package option for beverage marketers,” said Curtis Hughes, Alcoa Commercial Vice President Rigid Packaging.

The C2C aluminum bottle was also recently recognized by the Institute of Packaging Professionals with a 2009/2010 Ameristar Award, 2009 International Can of Year Award sponsored by Sayers Publishing Group, and won an American Business “Stevie” 2009 Business Innovation of the Year award.

My Collection

Fred Chambers ABC# 025

I started collecting aluminum bottles at the beginning of their conception, not so much by choice as by chance. I was given one of the early World Lager bottles by John Kizzis from Florida and told, "You need this one" at a 2005 "Valley Forge Show" in Morgantown, PA. Then came the baseball bottles and poof, I was hooked. Fortunately with Philly as the closest big city and being within a 30 mile drive to the North or South the Orioles, Yankees, Mets, Sox and no deposits from Jersey can be found or ordered. This helps a lot for trades to boost the collection much the same as other collectors.

I originally was just A/B then of course the Miller, Coors, 16 Mile and other nations of bottles came along. I don't actively seek out all the odd numbers or countries, but trades somehow seem to spontaneously happen.

The soda cabottles are my sons collecting interest... he is 17 and 5 years in NPCC, which doesn't seem to recognize the bottles as much as cans. The soda cabottles however have made for a nice joint father /son collection which is a cool thing in this day to pass along and has managed to keep him out of trouble as a hobby, like we all had in younger years!

Pictures shown are far less than ½ of basement of collection... this is an unfinished basement... The cans and the shelves are the finishing! I have no shame in this.

My collecting in general would be from 5 oz to 5 liter "North American", Canada, Mexico and Island countries included. I actively seek out those cans and really like the new craft/micro cans. I have exceptions as well, a nice boast of Australian and European cans are in the collection. "On display" are approximately 7500 beer cans, a couple thousand Coke/Pepsi and energy drinks, approximately 400 aluminum bottles and about 40-50 5 liters (Up in rafters)! Also several thousand other cans are cataloged and up in the attic, both soda and beer nature along with Sports, Michelob Golf, Keystone unsmooth and un-specialized countries of cans.

Many thanks to ABC collectors that have visited here to see collection and trade in the past, John Ahrens, Butch, Mark Williamson, Spiny, Frank Behan...to name a few! My collection is a hands on, check it out collection. Trades are sort'em out and tell me what you need... no fancy lists although a ton of stuff here.

I have traded with most of you or we've met at shows in the Northeast. CANvention 40 will be basically in my backyard at Valley Forge. It's within 15 miles, so I hope to meet many I have traded with past but never met and make a few new friends.

Will be doing a lot of BBQ's here during CANvention for the sober in the off hours. I am a morning guy and I am not setting up tables there.

If a local address would be needed to send cans for those flying in and renting a car, feel free to mail here for pickup. Send to your name and make the package C.O. me! I am taking the week off and I'm just ¼ mile off of Interstate RT 202 in West Chester, PA. I have a horse-shoe driveway for easy pickup! I will gladly hold for pickup but will not be available to deliver to the show. Contact me if interested.

Cheers!
Fred Chambers

Website Update...

Yes the website/forum are in full swing. If you haven't yet registered on the forum what can you possibly be waiting for? Only about 40% of the membership has registered and of those only about a dozen or so are posting. There have been dozens of good trades/sales and if you want to stay up to date on aluminum bottles, the forum is the place to be.

Check it out at www.abcchapter.com/forum

The website is also starting to take shape. The foreign bottle listing is loaded and the A-B listings should be complete real soon. From there we'll move onto the US listings and soda listings. You can also catch-up on back issues and even renew you ABC membership through PayPal.

What's New

Bob Renforth ABC# 001

New releases for this issue come from Miller Lite, and are all baseball related. They are the Arizona Diamond-Backs #837267, Kansas City Royals #837302, Seattle Mariners #837265, and the Tampa Bay Rays #837266. There is still no confirmation on whether or not Miller released bottles for the Dodgers or Padres. If anyone sees them, let me know.

Miller has kicked off the football season already with a Dallas Cowboys 50th Anniversary bottle 838049. No word yet on any other football bottles from Miller, but it's probably a safe bet to say yes.

With Coors Light coming on board, it will be interesting to see what they will do come football season, like Miller appears to be doing. Being the Official Beer Sponsor of the NFL, it could be very lucrative for them if they approached this right. We could be doing a whole lot of cross country trading in the near future.

Keep your eyes open!

Foreign Bottles

Juan Carlos De Marco ABC# 031

Just returned from Europe, and while I was there I was inidated with new cabottles, that not only will be incorporated into my collection, but I'll surely bring a few along to Valley Forge. So get ready to make some good trades! I really regret it that Anheuser-Busch has changed its policy on cabottle production and deprives us of having these magnificent pieces, which for several years made us lose our heads. The rest of the world is trying to fill the void and keeping up on the releases to satisfy the hunger for collectors. In this issue there is something really remarkable to be said on the beauty of their designs, see:

SWITZERLAND:
This small European country released a few conventional bottles: "Brauhaus" in two flavors: Hell and Schwartz, which joined "Wartmann's" in its four variants: Barley Wine, Bitter Ale , Choco Stout and Blanche Grand Cru. And finally the news, warning that may be born a competition among producers (us grateful ...), The "Spring Beer" and "Winter Beer", also with little flight models artistic in their designs.

GERMANY: Germans always slowly but surely, for many years, offer a few surprises: The "Cheers Lammbrauerei Hilsenbeck" with a young and modern design, changing the historical profile. Like the "Schuler", within the same wavelength.

CZECH REPUBLIC: Although we are not sure to be a serial cabottle, or a "test", but it certainly would be very good that the "Fusion Premium Lager" is on the shelves of supermarkets so that we may have.

FRANCE: The French are not having too many new features, but when they do put their cabottles on the market they are known for quality. A new version of "Desperados" appeared in 2010, keeping the colors and identity forever.

HUNGARY: Szenna Pack has just introduced two different "Drinking Bottle" models which launched the market for some drinks. It is hoped that the breweries are interested in them. Question: Don't you think that the blue model has a certain resemblance to BL splash 501426?

JAPAN: Asians do not stop at its permanent production. Preserving its beautiful designs, here we show the "Hasekura Tsunenaga" and "Dry Suntory Magnum 415". Not attracted a trip to the empire of the rising sun to smuggle some pieces?

AUSTRIA: Well, well ... this this should be a hit in the states: Two models of the beer "Hot Rod" which although ancient (2006) did not know until recently. The Austrians seem to be very reserved and quiet and kept this one to themselves for a while.

DOMINICA Island: This is a gem to behold. Also debuts the Island in its production of cabottles with this piece that keeps the weather and the flavor of the Caribbean beaches. "Kubuli" gives us something really special.

MONACO: While this is not new occurrences, it is important to know that 2005 and 2008 editions of the now famous "Red Propaganda Guarana" of the European principality, are different, and here we show the differences. '05 left, '08 right PORTUGAL: The same applies to the "Super Bock" we had seen years earlier. We just discovered that there is an issue of 5.4% and 5.6% other. For those who collect exquisite small differences, this detail can only be read on the side of the cabottles, as the designs are equal.

LUXEMBOURG: I was at the European Convention in this country, barely less than a month ago, and this bottle, "Simon Pils" was the star of the meeting. Its design is simply stunning white background with a red heraldic lion in his whole body. A bottle should not miss in any collection.

NORWAY: Winner of international design awards, the "Summer Beer Party" is a wonderful display of art and creativity. The Nordics show their taste and talent.

SPAIN: I left for last the country that has produced many in recent years, but today only gives us the new "Mahou Mixta. With many colors and a very summery beer to cool off with the taste of lemon.

Additional photos of these and many other foreign bottles are available on the website. Check it out at www.abchapter.com

What's New in A-B?!

Brad Ambruso ABC# 007

First off let's get to what didn't transpire. A-B or should I say 800-DIALBUD, gave us some erroneous information on the MLB bottles. The only ones to be released are the two we've already seen, the Angels All-Star bottles.

Now that that's out of the way a sleeper Budweiser for Canada did show up. The number 501334 should have put it out with the Bud Light 501335 that came out in 2009. The Bud didn't show up till the Winter Olympics for some reason.

Bud Light is finally putting the Golden Wheat into aluminum bottles and should be readily available about the time this newsletter is out.

Michelob Ultra has changed the label around some. Nothing drastic but a whole bunch of little changes.

The long awaited release of the Budweiser 'Osheaga Music Festival' bottle has finally arrived. Probably one of the most drastic design changes we've seen since the Bud 'St Pats' Day bottle. There has also been rumors that the was to be a Bud for the Canada IZOD race, not true. I can never figure out how these rumors get started...

Finally two different Bud Light championship bottles has been released. One for the Chicago Blackhawks Stanley Cup win and another for the New Orleans Saints Super Bowl win from earlier this year. Since A-B backed off on the MLB series they appear to now be just centering on the championships for a particular sport. Keep an eye out for a NBA Champ Lakers bottle and whoever happens to win the World Series will probably get one also. Hopefully I'm not the one starting rumors, but...
